ARTEMUS WARD ON COPPERHEADS.

Artenus Ward may be stamped "sound" or Copperheads. He says in his last letter:

Not loring ago I made a revoo ov Joseph's emy. I was considirably surprised to observe all the campons pinting tite towards the North "My blood-stained veteran," sex 1, addressing a Lieutenant Brigadier, who was playin "old sledge" with a teath corporal's eleck for a yaller postage stamp a corner-"my blood-stained vetering, why air not them gons pinting towardthe Southern Conthicversev !" "Thunder!" replied the Licutement Brigadio turnin up a Jack from the bottom-"thunder what's the use of nimin' can towards the South as loring as there is was enermies to our Guy' ment in the North ! It will be an easy matter to wipe out the relicatifier we put down the Copperheads in the North."

"My bloomin' hero," sez I, "I guss you air about rite. The Butlerouts are mean traiters but the Northern C. II is air a infernal site the slippin's acc up his kote sleeve.

I left 'cm 2 them innerent and postine and propehl--propeld a little too much, for I wandered outside the Fed'ril lines, an' surrounded 2 seash pickets, an' took 'em prisoners. The F. -there F. F. V.'s don't mean Five Poolish Virgins (scarcely): the F. F. V.'s objected to accompanyin me: so I follered them.—
Considerin' they was my prisoners. they used ted to accompanyin me : so I follered them.— Considerin' they was my prisoners. They used me prefly roughly. But it's thate way. I fol-lered the chaps marrly to Richman, when sure F. F. V. shivilries got a squint at me. They immediately commens for to hold there noses shet, an' sain pulled off tharestoes an' stockies as of I was goin' to lick there feet.

"Koch a respectable distant!" sez one.
"Xe; I will—to keep respectable." The was my surcustic refort.

"Bog your pardin!" applogized the F. F. V.'s, puttin' on there shoes & stockins an' takin there digits from the masal organs. "We thort you was one of them Surthren Copperhedded peas men, who air allers wantin' to liek ounfect an, make up with us."

"Nary peas mon?" sex I. "I'm in favor ov a vigrus processoria ov the war. Ditto my triend A. L."
"Well," sez they, "we hav sum respeck for a Yankee wot stans up for his Guv'ment; but the blowy Vallandighammers, Woodles, Hughses, and so little, we think a little lower than a runaway nigger. If they was lock up by your Guvanent, weld rejoice. They are not only trailors to the North, but to the South 2."

"I allers considered 'em so too-except to the South. Ditto my friend A. L."

I' poligized for captouring there 2 pickets, an they released use on a parole ov honor-whatever that is. I bleeve, ef the Copperheds wood behave themselves, an' not drink too much whisky, they would be as good a Union men as the rebels. Jist about.

DISAGREEMENT AMONG SAVANS.

Sir Charles Lyell has just published a work on the "Antiquity of Man," designed to discredit the Mosnic account of the creation.-But it seems that all scientific mendo not agree with him; and so high an authority as Richard
Owen, standing at the head of the naturalists

| Bulba For sile | R. WILSON'S. of Frotand, and only differs from his conclusions. but thinks the spirit of the work untain and unmanly. The Probyterien, in noticing the criticism, enys: The first bit at the new book of Sir Charles Lyell is by Richard Owen, the great master in the anatomy of forsils. The charge, however, is of moral, not a scientific character. Professor Owen necuses byell of having uttered a cal-umny in certain statements made in his book, and to have done it, not with a manful boldness, but slyly and adroitly. He closes the article in but styly and adrotty. He closes the attitude in the Atheneum, in which he brings this accusa-tion, with these words: "The tree is known by its fruits; and if such be the produce of the fair tree of knowledge, which Lyell has so skilfully decked and set off to the world, it cannot be a mund one." It is one of the affections of the scientific men of our time, to be superior to all but the pureal scientific considerations, and to conduct their investigations in that serons and elevated region to which ordinary prejudices do not reach. At various times there are revelufions made, which indicate that this exquisite cantor is marred by some very old and common human frailtes. Perhaps the indifference they manifest to the facts of history as recorded in the Bible, is sometimes due to a secret antipathy which they would be loth to acknowledge, but which is not a stranger, alas! to the meet of-ned and cultivated of our fallen race

In the "Legend of the Trees of Life," publish ed in New York, in 1775, occurs the following of Trees and woods have twice so d) the worldfirst by the ark, then by the cross; making full annuals for the evil fruit of the tree of Paradise. by that which was borne on the tree in Golge

The anger that dushes the face is not so deadly as that which makes it pale. The red heat is less interre than the while.
